Using an essay that we have discussed in class (or which is found in your textbook), you should identify the position of the essay, and construct an argument against it. Your argument must include a narrowed, qualified thesis statement and must be supported by points found in secondary sources. In addition, you must include a strategic introduction and conclusion (demonstrating a good “hook” for the reader, as well as a captivating closing strategy).

You should include 4 sources for your paper (providing paraphrases and/or quotations as needed from each). Please use a blend of these secondary source reporting strategies.
