EXERCISE

Below is a short passage. Make notes about the author's use of language, then attempt to create an imitation of it. Note: You may have to change the subject matter and/or even make it satirical/funny.

Frogs are amphibians, characterized by their tail-less appearance, long hind legs, short bodies, and webbed digits. There are many different species of frogs from the Flat-Headed Frog to the Poison Dart Frog. Frogs have remarkable organs, which allow them to show remarkable adaptations to their environments. Some of these organs include: a three-chambered heart, permeable skin, and a particularly effective digestive system.
